

Sample Writing 2 – Upper Intermediate (B2)

Topic: What makes people role models and/or heroes?

Role Models

It is a well-known fact that there are several factors which make people role models. Role models who achieve their aims lead people to follow themselves. People whose intentions are similar to intentions of other people accept them as role models. Furthermore, another factor which makes people role models is that they do not give up their goals. Therefore, this determination affects many people in terms of having a role model. That is why, individuals who are role models leave a crucial impact on people due to their achievements and determinations.

First of all, role models are chosen depending on their success. To start with, many people are influenced by the way achievements are attained. Therefore, some people who demand to reach their targets tend to have a role model. They want to see examples which go parallel with their aims. Thus, role models show them a way to follow. When people see the accomplishments attained, they do not give up their hopes because these successes mean that their intentions can be actualized. All in all, success is an important factor to consider when choosing a role model.

Second of all, determination is another vital milestone in terms of making people role models. Resolution of role models encourage people to pursue their dreams or targets. When people start to give up their perseverance, role models' examples show that if people keep maintaining their will powers, they will actualize their purposes. Therefore, since resolution is a key of success, some people naturally follow the role models who have strong tenacities.

In conclusion, role models give an appropriate effect to people owing to their successes, and strong determinations. Firstly, achievements which role models have actualized provide them to be role models. Another factor is determination.

Sample Writing 2 – Upper Intermediate (B2)

Resolution, which plays a big role in terms of making people role models, influences people who want to pursue their purposes. Thus, in view of these reasons, people make some people their role models.